The Beginning

This book is designed as a descent.

You'll start at the surface—where it's safe and clear. Gradually, you'll go deeper. By the end, you'll reach places few people ever visit.

Three Depths

Part I: First Steps. Warm-up. Simple questions to help you tune into honest conversation with yourself.

Part II: Exploration. The work begins here. Questions will touch on things you haven't thought about. That's normal.

Part III: Deep Work. The most important part. Only go here when you're ready. Don't rush.

Why This Way

We're made of layers. On top—what we know about ourselves and share easily. Deeper—what we know but don't like to admit. Even deeper—what we hide from ourselves.

Jumping straight to the depths hurts and doesn't help. You need a gradual descent. This book is your guide.

How to Proceed

Sequentially. Don't skip ahead. Each part prepares you for the next.

With pauses. Take breaks between parts—a day, a week. Let it settle.

In writing. A thought written by hand becomes more real. Don't answer in your head.

Honestly. No one will check this book. Lying here means lying only to yourself.

Let's start simple.

Part I: First Steps

Gentle start — getting to know yourself

Here and Now

Think About Life

where I am now

- 1. Describe your current state in three words?
- 2. What does your typical morning look like?
- 3. What do you do when you have free time and no one expects anything from you?
- 4. When was the last time you felt completely energized and full of vitality? What was happening around you?

Where I am now

Think About Career or Business

my work affairs

- 1. In which field are you currently working or studying?
- 2. How long have you been in this field?
- 3. Do you have relevant education in your current field?

where my time goes

- 1. When was the last time you spent a day without your phone or the internet?
- 2. Have you set boundaries for internet use in your life? What are they?
- 3. What did you do today to move closer to your main goals? And what might have been less important?

Work-Life Boundary

Personal Boundaries

The psychological boundary that separates professional responsibilities and activities from personal life, relationships, and leisure time. This boundary helps maintain mental health, prevents burnout, and ensures adequate time and energy allocation between work demands and personal well-being.

- 1. Do you have a specific time when your workday ends?

- 2. If everything in your life lost its meaning tomorrow, what would you regret the most?

Physical and Bodily Boundaries

Personal Boundaries

what my body tells me

- 1. What physical personal boundaries do you consistently maintain, and which ones do you often violate?
- 2. Do you love yourself enough to let go of what's harmful to you?

Facing Fear

Working with Fears

what I feel when I'm scared

- 1. Recall a moment when you faced your fear head-on. How did you feel?
- 2. What happens to your fear when you breathe through it? Does it become easier?
- 3. What warm and supportive words can you offer to your fear?

Deep Fear Analysis

Working with Fears

what lies behind fear

- 1. If your fear could speak, what would it say about what it's protecting?
- 2. If your anxiety were a wise teacher, what would it teach you?
- 3. Which part of you is no longer afraid of what used to frighten you?

Specific Fears

Working with Fears

my main fears

- 1. What financial concerns keep you up at night?
- 2. What do you desire but are afraid to fully pursue?
- 3. Do you think others might feel awkward or afraid when interacting with you? If so, what do you think could be causing this?

Fear and Motivation

Working with Fears

what fear does to me

- 1. Does your fear motivate you to move forward, or does it paralyze you?
- 2. When you avoid certain situations, what specifically frightens you about them: the real danger, or the possibility of discovering something new about yourself?
- 3. What are you avoiding so subtly that you don't even notice it?

Fear in Relationships

Working with Fears

intimacy scares me

- 1. Do you give people your time and attention out of generosity, or from fear of being rejected?
- 2. What scares you more: showing your vulnerability or the risk that it might be used against you?
- 3. What scares you more: being alone or facing yourself?
- 4. If you weren't afraid of being alone, which relationships would you end?

Existential fears

Working with Fears

what I'm truly afraid of

- 1. What do you fear more: the intensity of your emotions or their complete absence?
- 2. Who will you become when you stop being afraid?
- 3. What kind of person do you become when you choose love over fear?

Unconscious fears

Working with Fears

what I secretly fear

- 1. What truth about yourself do you sense but aren't ready to face yet?
- 2. If your closest relationships could speak, what hidden struggles would they reveal about you?

Successes and Resources in Relationships

Relationships

Understanding

my victories in love

- 1. What aspect of relationship success are you proud of?
- 2. Think of a relationship where you felt truly seen. What made it special?

Attention: Deep Work Ahead

The following section requires special care.

Before continuing, make sure:

- You are in a safe place
- You have time and energy
- No one will disturb you

These questions may evoke strong emotions. That's normal—it means you're touching something important.

If it becomes too overwhelming—stop. Take a break. Return later.

Be gentle with yourself.

You've Reached the Bottom

In a good way.

You've reached the deepest point. You've seen what usually stays in shadow. That takes courage—and you showed it.

What Now

What you wrote isn't just answers. It's a map of your inner world. It will change as you change.

In a month reread your notes. You'll be surprised how your perception has shifted.

In a year go through the book again. You'll be a different person—and your answers will be different.

One Final Question

What do you now know about yourself that you didn't know before this book?

The path continues.
